

Fighting Neighborhood Crime

The most effective means of reducing crime in the neighborhood is an organization of neighbors helping one another.

It's a fact: Concerned neighbors reduce crime.

Putting into practice the time-honored 'good neighbor' policy is still the single most important factor in solving problems—including crime. But maybe your neighborhood doesn't have a crime problem.

Don't count on it.

Across the nation, the estimated equivalent of one out of every 12 households is victimized by the crime of burglary alone.

You can take steps to make your neighborhood a safer place to live. It costs little more than your interest and cooperation. Is it worth the investment?

Definitely.

Criminal Justice Services
Program Coordination and Development Department

601 E Street, N.W.
Washington, DC 20049

AARP is the nation's leading organization for people age 50 and over. It serves their needs and interests through legislative advocacy, research, informative programs and community services provided by a network of local chapters and experienced volunteers throughout the country. The organization also offers members a wide range of special membership benefits, including Modern Maturity magazine and the monthly Bulletin.

Copyright © 1982, 1986, 1990 by American Association of Retired Persons.

PF 1399(396) • D397

How To Protect Your Neighborhood

